Gen Grant in New York

[From the New York World Nov 6

The General commanding the armies of the United States arrived in this city yesterday morning from Washington at an hour when the clocks had just ceased crowing [illegible] the late [illegible] and still as it always is at [illegible] o'clock of a November morning

Gen Grant was accompanied by Mrs General Grant in a plain traveling dress with Gen Adam Badeau and General Dent [illegible] of Gen Grant [illegible] were attired in the uniform of general officers of the United States army General Grant wore the plain citizen's dress and had no ornament whatever betokening his high rank

Owing to the secrecy of this last flank movement of General Grant but a small party [illegible] was present at the New York or Jersey City side of the ferry to cheer or welcome the General

Arrived at the Metropolitan the American standard was hoisted [illegible] the party were escorted to a [illegible] the General [illegible] lady occupied Room 114 a spacious and elegant parlor and bedroom handsomely furnished Gen Badeau—an old newspaper man—and Gen Dent occupied Room 101, modestly but comfortably fitted up

After breakfast, when General Grant had leisure to smoke a good Partagas cigar scores of people left their cards One modest Yankee had a great desire to show the General a new patent velocipede, but he was restrained by force Another individual felt that it was his duty as a man a brother and an American to bore the General with a prospectus of his cough lozenges good for any sore throat or influenza A Cuban filibuster Colonel wanted the assistance of General Grant to invade Cuba and only wanted the loan of a regiment of infantry with this regiment he was quite sure that he could lick the Spaniards off the face of the earth

But there were other visitors who called, out of good will courtesy or subordination

First came grim tall old Major General Heintzelman, who had seen the smoke of a good many fights

"How do you do General Grant?" said Heintzelman

"I feel pretty well thank you General Heintzelman" said Grant

Then came General Irwin McDowell who commanded the national army at the first Bull Run battle The two officers shook hands heartily and General McDowell gave way to little Dan Butterfield with his handsome black moustache, whom Grant first met if we are not mistaken in the West and whom he had promoted to the command of the Twentieth Army Corps Then there was another shake hands all round Then followed that gallant artillery officer, Gen Doubleday who shook hands with Grant as if he was behind a battery of six guns And also came General H D Wallen, an old Fourteenth Infantryman Judge Hilton, smiling like a basket of chips on his good natured face and his gallant left bower Edward Pierrepont with a most beautiful shirt bosom—a shirt bosom that far out rivaled anything that Mr Pierrepont had ever done before in that line And last though not least came Mr A Stewart the great merchant prince the master of millions, to greet the man of armies and victories

During the afternoon Mr Robert Bonner, the proprietor of the New York Ledger, between whom and Gen Grant there is a community of sentiment on the subject of fine blooded horses, called and had an interview of a few moments with General Grant The result of the sociable interview was that General Grant accepted an invitation of Mr Bonner to take a ride behind "Pocahontas" and mate in Central Park. The team being ready, General Grant jumped up along with Mr Bonner and away the magnificent horses sped up Broadway attracting crowds of idlers who looked at the plain looking little man, and never dreamed that he had captured Vicksburg and flanked Richmond after many a bloody day's fighting Riding up Fifth Avenue General Grant paid great attention in his quiet still manner, to all the new buildings and objects of interest on the route Particularly General Grant took notice of the solid and substantial brown stone front of the Manhattan Club house of the ornate architecture of the Temple Emanuel, and of the singular looking white marble chateau that crowns the entrance to the Park Of course, Mr Bonner gratified General Grant by passing every thing in the way of horseflesh going to and coming from the Park, and toward dusk they arrived at the Metropolitan with most excellent appetites

Gen Grant on arriving in New York it seems, felt a little chilled and very thoughtfully the notion came into his head that it would be wise to purchase an overcoat He paid a visit to Devlin's and purchased a black broadcloth sack overcoat for thirty dollars which when tried on, fitted him like a lemon Everybody, including General Dent was pleased with his overcoat and General Grant with his overcoat looked more like a Jersey farmer than the Chief of the United States armies

At 5 P M General Grant Mrs Grant and General Dent dined alone in the private parlor and after dinner remained in their apartments until 7 o'clock A carriage then drove up to the Metropolitan into which Generals Grant and Dent stepped, and drove to the Olympic Theater They entered the private box on the right near the footlights just before the curtain rose and had not time even to take their seats when the assemblage cried out vociferously "Grant! Grant! Grant! There's General Grant!" The cheering soon became long and loud and terminated by the General rising from his seat and bowing frequently They again applauded, and desired some other recognition but he of few words wished for peace and obtained it The band then played "Hail to the Chief" with feeling and effect after which the play advanced and the usual silence was restored

At Niblo's Theater, next to the Metropolitan Hotel Mrs Grant, Judge Hilton Mr A T Stewart and Mrs Stewart were present during the greater part of the evening occupying the private box of Mr Stewart but the presence of Mrs Grant was not known

When the performance at the Olympic closed a general rush was made to the door to obtain a view of the President elect but by a flank movement he with General Dent escaped from the box to the rear and was safely ensconced in the drawing room when the crowd were eagerly looking for his exit from the theater

The General looks admirably well At the theater he was attired in a full black dress suit and looked the modest gentleman he is [illegible] and staff will leave New York for West Point this morning probably by the 11 o'clock train On Monday next they will return to New York and the General has intimated his desire to several gentlemen that he will remain a few days in the city when he does return His headquarters then will be the Union League Club

Edwin M Stanton A rebel paper has the following on the late Secretary of War

We have always considered Mr Stanton as a person upon whom the President might [illegible] [illegible] habit as well as inclination Mr Stanton was the strongest evil spirit of the war He daily [illegible] the crisis He knew it was not a mere war [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] but it was [illegible] He kept [illegible] direct electric communication with all the State authorities of the free States so as to inoculate them with his [illegible] against slavery [illegible] the slaveholders He collected his resources from every quarter regardless of legality or cost He poured out the war material [illegible] furnished men and money He organized the victory of the North and the defeat of the South He made the reputation of General Grant and all the other Generals We have often stated what we still believe that if Mr Stanton had been the Southern Secretary of War instead of the northern he could have [illegible] result [illegible] persistence and confidence our Generals' [illegible] would have been frustrated by their opponents and the infinite variety of [illegible] to be surmounted [illegible] the war [illegible]

A vessel is building at New York larger than any other in the world except the Great Eastern. She will be named the America and is designed for the China trade

Gen Hindman

A [illegible] WAR HIS[illegible] TAKE NO PRISONERS

[From the R[illegible] Nov 9]

A friend who happened to be [illegible] recent war to be placed for a few days under the command of the [illegible] General Hindman of Arkansas recently assassinated [illegible] the [illegible] following page of unrecorded history

"Did I ever meet Hindman in my war experience?" you ask Yes I met him once and had no wish to meet him again [illegible] Tyrant was marked in every lineament of his handsome face [illegible] and waved in every ringlet of his flowing Absalom like locks It was late the evening of the 21st of May 1862 Gen Halleck had been wasting more than a month [illegible] his advance against Beauregard at [illegible] slow approaches [illegible] entrenchments and parallels while the Confederate army was melting away by sickness and [illegible] perishing for want of water

Beauregard saw his army dwindling day by day and knew that his only alternative was to force a battle or retreat On the evening mentioned he determined to bring on a general engagement, and made his dispositions accordingly The entire army was put in motion and marched out to the entrenched camp of Corinth We halted on the brow of the hill half way between the two camps—the Federal army then occupying Farmington three miles from Corinth The country was thickly wooded and undulating, and a small stream meandered through the ravine which separated the hostile hosts Our forces were disposed in three lines of battle in the same manner as we began the fight at Shiloh Price and Van Dorn with their Missouri and Arkansas troops had been sent to attempt a secret movement by which it was contemplated the left flank of the enemy might be turned and the thunder of their guns on our right and the Federal left the next morning was to announce the success of the plan and be the signal for a general assault all along the line I was in the first line of battle, acting as a file-closer the left being in front

The sun was setting serenely in the west as is usually the case and betokened a goodly day on the morrow when a military horseman approached the head of our column and reigned his superb war steed within two paces of where I stood leaning on my musket He at once commenced talking "Men" said he "in to morrow's battle fire low It is as important to wound the enemy in the legs and even more important than to kill him for it will require two sound men at least to take care of the wounded Be calm and be sure of your aim Don't waste your ammunition Keep your formation, remain always with your colors be careful not to straggle or get separated and always push to the front Never mind your wounded comrades, for ample provisions have already been made to remove them from the field You need not take any prisoners I do not want them They will only serve to embarrass the army and weaken our strength Obey my instructions—stand by your colors—and to morrow's sun will set upon one of the most glorious victories ever achieved on the American continent" and bowing gracefully he passed on leaving us to wonder As he wore no uniform carried no sword showed no military insignia save a revolver in his belt and was unknown to the command his address somewhat surprised us and the inquiry, "Who is he?" was pretty general "Why that's General Hindman, your new Division Commander" said the Brigade Adjutant, "and you'd better believe that he'll show us h—l to morrow" The reply was anything but [illegible] for we had heard that he was prone to the fault of unnecessarily exposing his men

"What did he mean by not wanting to take prisoners?" inquired a sergeant to my left "Does he expect us to murder them?" "That's the only construction I can give his remark, and the peculiar manner in which it was made" was the reply And his division so understood it—but I doubt whether a single man in that line would have obeyed instructions so inhuman He was a splendid tyrant—young and handsome, but soulless—and no doubt met his fate at the hands of some relative of one of the many victims to his stern cruelty as it was his practice to shoot his soldiers for very slight offences, or otherwise severely punish them

That night was an anxious one—as "the night before the battle" ever is the soldier Around the bivouac fires comrades gathered gloomily, as the scattering shots of the pickets in front, and the whistling of the balls over our heads subdued the ce tamis je gaudie and reminded us that 'ere the sun rose again the combat would deepen and many of us lie low Each confided to his friend some message for home and dear ones—to sweet heart wife or mother—prefacing it "If I fall and you should escape tell her that ——"

Morning came—the sun rose but the fog which hung like a shroud over the two armies was impenetrable to its rays Every ear was awake to hear the signal from the right, but the day advanced the sun stalked his stately course up the heavens noon came and still nothing from Price and Van Dorn The day waned night approached and with it brought a tired and dust begrimed courier with the intelligence that the flank movement had failed through premature discovery and that Price and Van Dorn were falling back

So ended the intended great fight of the 22d of May 1862 which would have been known as the battle of Farmington and which would have resulted as did that of Shiloh. Beauregard now commenced his preparations for the evacuation of Corinth and eight days after simultaneously with the opening of Halleck's big guns on that town his army withdrew by the causeway which he had previously constructed for that purpose, through the Tuscumbia swamp and escaped to Tupelo without the loss of a single prisoner notwithstanding General Pope telegraphed to Washington that he had taken ten thousand He might have taken twenty thousand if he had pursued the army or attempted to cut it off for I never before or since beheld such demoralization among troops They were without organization almost in a state of mutiny and ready to yield at any moment to the first demand Pope lost a golden opportunity there

Iron Fortifications and Great Guns —A letter from Berlin says

The success which attended the experiments of last summer has induced the Prussian Government to employ large blocks of hard cast metal for the purposes of fortification A foundry has been established with this object on the artillery experimental ground by which arrangement it is not necessary to move its ponderous productions any very great distance whenever it is thought advisable to give Krupp an opportunity of knocking them to pieces or endeavoring to do so A colossal casting weighing ninety tons was made there recently in the presence of the Minister of War and numerous military and naval officers and is unquestionably by far the greatest that has ever been attempted on the continent What is considered still more remarkable than the size of this casting was the very short time required for the process The metal was melted in three large furnaces in the short space of three hours but the actual casting was completed in forty five seconds

The report adds by way of comparison that the casting of a steam hammer weighing one hundred [illegible] required in England forty eight hours

A hydraulic crane is used for moving these large masses and does its work so easily that a [illegible] weighing forty tons has been moved several hundred yards and placed on the frame work intended to receive it in half an hour The plates are not fastened together by bolts or screws but cast in such a shape as to dovetail into each other It is intended to employ a combination of iron earthwork and masonry in the new forts and to adopt the approved methods in the coast defenses [illegible] the heaviest fire

The Woolwich gun which has been competing at Berlin with Krupp's has shown a deep crack after the two hundredth and sixty fourth round whereas Krupp's gun has remained unscathed after four hundred rounds and his friends are [illegible] the other hand [illegible] even in [illegible] place—three inches of steel on four inches of iron—from the Cyclops works Sheffield was too much for Krupp's 96 pounder—at least only the point of the shot came through I hear [illegible] a reduced charge of powder was used on this occasion The same projectile however and with a similar reduced charge had knocked an eight inch plate of Austrian manufacture all to pieces Both Krupp and Borsig have offered to establish works for rolling plat in Prussia.

This city is California—yes, even the [illegible] less arbitrarily than Paris is F[illegible] The gate of Commerce is the front door of Fash[illegible] Less than twenty years ago an [illegible] of splendid adventurous manhood swept [illegible] giving the world's current history [illegible] new strange pages and contributing to [illegible] science many facts that were as good as new, because they had been forgotten since the [illegible] unrecorded searches for gold The [illegible] bristling elbowing community that sprang [illegible] in what are called the early days, was an [illegible] of lusty human animals, all [illegible] and get out all inspired by the [illegible] of selfishness That miner was king who [illegible] work the longest and stand the most water in his boots The weakling that had backaches and headaches though his brain was [illegible] had to fall to the rear and do the [illegible] A case knife to scrape the gold out of the [illegible] and a pan to wash away the [illegible] were the symbols of rank, and he who [illegible] flourish them the most hours in the [illegible] was the duke or the prince royal of [illegible]

The National Intelligencer."

[Washington Correspondent St Louis R[illegible]

I dislike newspaper talk, when there [illegible] cuse for avoiding it, but among the [illegible] election will be a catastrophe significant to [illegible]ington in journalism—the fall of the National Intelligencer

The National Intelligencer of old, an organ of establishment has fired its last [illegible] ary shot upon the progress of the nation [illegible] race using the Capital City as a port [illegible] is pavement talk that it is in debt [illegible] add to one Polkinhorn, a retired job [illegible] has foreclosed upon the concern, and the [illegible] lies to Bulwer's interrogatory

"What will he do with it?"

The ostensible owners of the Intelligencer [illegible] Snow Coyle & Co" Snow is a [illegible] gentleman traveling between New York and [illegible]ington "Johnny" Coyle was a [illegible] confidential cashier in the office of that [illegible] Intelligencer owned by the brothers-in-law, [illegible] Seaton

The latter were "high-toned" [illegible] to use a pro-slavery phrase who took [illegible] money and never kept any account with [illegible] selves Each man drew from the [illegible] enough for his wants, they spent [illegible] for intelligence, rather disdained news like [illegible] British reviewers—say the Nation, [illegible] amongst us—and pensioned off their old [illegible] took care of them when sick, and otherwise attempted to engraft upon American [illegible] some of the absurd imitations of patron[illegible] mon to English estate owners The [illegible] that the Intelligencer obtained [illegible] and lost money except for the charity of Congress His proprietors failed once in publishing the [illegible] of Congress and when they went to retire at last Johnny" Coyle who [illegible] to have a large residuary account, staggered the [illegible] law with its remarkable large amount and [illegible] the working head of the new concern

Polkinhorn used to be a local job printer, as I have said and he owned the building in which the Intelligencer was printed. He took [illegible] advanced money and at last, when the P[illegible]vania Indiana and Ohio elections were over, his purse strings refused to unloose By [illegible] as the French idiom would put it, the Intelligencer must find a buyer, and the mystery of "J[illegible]" Coyle must be solved or [illegible] a mystery. [illegible] and where has Coyle obtained $30,000 a year to spend when the Intelligencer has never made a cent? Whence came that princely [illegible] of in gesse and backsheesh which has enabled Coyle to bask in the sunshine of the White House, defy the Treasury and its thunderbolts and play the bold game of absoluteness with perpetual bankruptcy under his feet? Has lobbying paid so well? Has it been profitable to be a go [illegible] in the affairs of individuals and of powers? The premium on "cheek" as opposed to character, has never been higher in the history of the Government than in the case of "Johnny" Coyle. He [illegible] the [illegible] in the records of Capitoline journalism Frank Blair was the organist of Andrew Jackson and the line running toward the crack of doom describes "Johnny" Coyle as the [illegible] of Andrew Johnson

Prussia began to arm her soldiers with the celebrated needle gun as long ago as 1836 She first used the weapon in the Danish campaign, and as its efficiency was then well shown, the English Government in June 1864 resolved to arm its infantry and cavalry with breech-loaders, which are now fired on the needle and [illegible] principle The Snider gun which England adopted in the place of Enfield rifles is said, with the improvements which have recently been made in its bullet to be as good as if not better than the Prussian needle gun Its construction is simpler and it weighs less—9 lbs 4 oz to 12 lbs.

The Oakland (Cal) Transcript says that the Board of Regents of the California University, are thinking of inviting the Rev P V Nasby to accept the position of Chaplain together with the chair of belles-lettres of that institution The paper objects to the nomination and suggests the name of Parson O P Fitzgerald

The Daily Oregonian

TUESDAY MORNING DEC. 8, 1868

The True American Soldier

There is no better type of the true American soldier than General Thomas, the hero of Chickamauga and Nashville. On duty since the close of the war in the department of Tennessee, he has by his firm and patriotic course fully preserved the laurels he won in the struggle. A Virginian by birth he is a type of the class of patriots whom that State produced before her children became contaminated by the pernicious principles inculcated by the authors of the resolutions of '98 and the other parts of the Democratic creed. It is refreshing to read General Thomas' report to General Grant regarding affairs in his department. He calls things by their right names. In his vocabulary a rebel is a rebel. A plain blunt, honest man he talks in a straightforward way without noise or want of ostentation. He gives an exhaustive history of the Ku Klux Klan in Tennessee and is justly severe upon those Northern men who join the rebels in denying the existence of the Klan. The troops in his department have constantly been too few to effectually preserve the peace. In one case the General ordered the arrest of a rebel soldier for violating his parole by assaulting a Union man and ordered his trial by a military commission. The case was referred to Attorney General Stanbery who held that the prisoner had violated no law. "After that," the report continues, "no further attempt was made to afford protection to Union citizens by enforcing the obligation of paroles as the latter seem of little value except to the paroled." The report closes as follows:

> Violence is openly tolerated, the editorials of the public press are such as to create the most intense hatred in the breasts of rebels and their sympathizers. The effect of this is to cause disturbances throughout the State by inciting the ruffianly portion of this class of citizens to murder, rob and maltreat white Unionists and colored people. In localities where there are no United States troops stationed, the local authorities often have not the will, and more often have not the power, to suppress or prevent these outrages. In Kentucky disenfranchisement cannot be alleged as a reason for the disturbance. Here the mass of people are in sympathy with the state authorities, and those politically opposed make no attempt to resist them. The colored people are quiet and peaceable. They have no political rights, not being enfranchised. Yet ruffians are permitted to tyrannize over them without fear of punishment. Testimony of negroes is refused in the State Courts, and the United States Courts are difficult of access to an ignorant people, without friends or influence. In some districts some ex-Union soldiers are persecuted by their murderous rebel neighbors, until forced into a resistance which sometimes ends with the loss of their lives or they are compelled, in self defence, to emigrate. An appeal to the courts affords but little hope for redress, as the magistrates and juries too often decide in accordance with their prejudices, without regard to justice. The controlling cause of the unsettled condition of affairs in this department is that the greatest efforts made by defeated [illegible] since the close of the war have been to promulgate the idea that the cause of liberty, justice, humanity, equality and all the calendar of the rights of freemen, suffered violence and wrong when the effort for Southern independence failed. This is, of course intended as a species of political cant whereby the crime of treason might be covered with a counterfeit varnish of patriotism so that those who participated in rebellion might go down in history hand in hand with the defenders of the government, thus wiping out with their own hands their own stains—a species of self forgiveness amazing in its effrontery, when it is considered that their life and property, justly forfeited by the laws of the country, of war, and nations, through the magnanimity of the government and of the people was not exacted from them. Under this inspiration the education of the great body of the people, moral, religious and political has been turned into channels wherein all might unite in common. The impoverishment of the South resulting from the war and its concomitants, the emancipation of the slaves and consequent loss of [illegible]ance; the ambiguity and uncertainty of political rights and financial values, as well as personal rivalries, have all combined to strengthen the efforts of pernicious teachers. The evil done has been great, and it is not discernible that an immediate improvement may be expected.

The "Leader" of the Next Congress

There are many speculations as to the probable "leader" of the next Congress. The Pittsburg Commercial says: "We believe there will be no leader in the sense of that term which it has obtained since Thaddeus Stevens obtained such wonderful control of the Republican two thirds majority in the House. Least of all do we believe that Butler will become the acknowledged leader. Though it is certain he will be a power and lead "the [illegible]ists," the great body of the Republican Congressmen will truly represent, we trust, the masses who elected them, and follow the leadership of Grant. There will be, in fact, several leaders. Schenck will undoubtedly have his own way, in matters of finance and taxation. Blaine, of Maine, is looming up into prominence and may be a leader. The Democrats will have more power than they have had, and hence, their leaders will be taken into account—whether it is to be Voorhees, or Eldridge, or Morrissey. It is possible that, as the next Congress will witness the extinction of old issues and the birth of new ones, all the old leaders who are identified with the questions of the present may be thrown into the shade by the uprising of fresh men. The hour may find its own leader."

MORE ABOUT THE "MERCENARY BRIGADE."—The Unionist remarks that "it is extremely unfortunate that there are not Federal offices enough to please everybody." We think differently. Were such the case it would probably considerably increase the number of mercenaries who hold themselves in readiness to go with either party as they think the one or the other likely to win. The same paper also remarks that "the great majority have no office," but forgets to add that as its proprietor is a member of the favored minority, he is very anxious that the existing state of things shall not be disturbed. The Unionist further remarks that the Republican party cannot afford to discard certain individuals. Pray, cannot it afford to discard them now when its principles are triumphant quite as well as it could have afforded to lose them when they tried to Copper-Johnsonize the State two or three years ago? The Republican party of Oregon is strong enough to "discard any man or any number of men" who make the possession of office the condition of party allegiance. There are mutterings among the Copper-Johnsons that if they do not have what they want they will go over to the Democracy. Let them go by all means. Let them [illegible] the Democracy and find a resting place in the same tomb.

CONNESS.—The Sacramento [illegible] comments on the rumor which has connected the name of Senator Conness of California with General Grant's Cabinet and protests against the appointment. It says: "We should like to see some one from the Pacific coast fill a seat in the Cabinet, but if the choice is to be made with the certain prospect of defeating us in the State election next year and of placing a mere politician in a position that should be filled by a statesman we but speak the sentiment of the great majority of Union men in this State, in saying that California would rather yield the appointment to some other State."

Legal Tender

There are some who talk boldly in favor of repudiating the national debt but we believe that the repudiators are no very considerable part of the American people. There are but few partisans who maintain that the South was right in every step she took to dissolve the Union and who therefore speak of the national debt as a great iniquity which ought to be got rid of in the shortest possible way. But the masses of the people are thoroughly honest and would reject with indignation any proposition that is tainted with fraud. There are, however, a good many persons who seem to have been deluded with the idea that an engraved promise to pay money is money and that the national bonds can therefore be paid with national engravings. A little reflection will show the error of this position. Nobody supposes that a bank can redeem its circulating notes with other notes of its own manufacture. Its notes may be a legal tender in every other part of the United States and may be given and received in exchange for every kind of commodities but they can never be a legal tender at the bank's own counter. When presented for payment they must be redeemed or the bank ceases business. The same principle holds in regard to the obligations of the Government. These obligations cannot be redeemed with other obligations. Whatever a private debtor may do the Government may do, and no more. "But," says the objector, "the Government can declare its notes a legal tender and an individual cannot do that." Granted, but paying a bond with legal tender notes is equivalent to declaring the bond a legal tender. Would an act of Congress declaring the bonds a legal tender be a payment of the bonds? If so, the whole public debt might be cancelled at once. What is the need of taxation if the magical words "legal tender" can discharge the obligations of the Government? Why did all the Democrats in Congress vote to pay interest on the bonds in gold, and why did they vote to issue bonds at all, if legal tender notes are now to be given in exchange for them? What is all this pother about if the Government can pay its bonds by simply authorizing the holders to pay their own debts with them?

THE DEMOCRATIC MONOMANIA.—The Democratic politicians continue to talk about the "nigger" and "white man's government." Were they wise they would begin to see the propriety of stopping this twaddle. For nearly twenty years they have been screeching "nigger, nigger," and their defeats every year have been growing more and more disastrous. Their constant harping on this subject has become a matter of public ridicule. Their enemies scoff at it as evidence of political monomania, and their best friends are chagrined at it. Democratic banners, Democratic transparencies, Democratic editorials, Democratic speakers are constantly keeping the negro foremost by constantly abusing him or abusing those who do not abuse him. The negro is the pivotal center of Democratic argument. A foreigner would think the negro was a sort of ghastly vision—a nightmare—an ever-present horror among the Democratic champions—a sort of Banquo's ghost which will not "down" at their "bidding."

WEST POINT.—In his annual report on West Point, the Inspector General of the Army says the Academy was never in better condition than now. The number of cadets now there is 224, number authorized by law when the Southern States are all admitted 290. He enters at length into the question of increasing the number of cadets, and concludes by saying that four hundred can just as well be educated there as two hundred and twenty-four, and strongly recommends an increase to that number. He says the necessity for an increased number of specially educated officers is admitted by all who have given attention to the subject, and this necessity will not diminish in the future. The whole number of graduates to this time is 2,273, the number who entered but did not graduate 2,472, the total cost of the Academy to date is $8 236,371. This includes the cost of grounds, buildings, books, work, instruments, apparatus, as well as pay of teachers and board of teachers and cadets.

POST OFFICE BUSINESS.—The report of the Postmaster General shows that the number of Post Offices in operation in the United States during the fiscal year is 26,481. The number of changes of Postmasters during the year was 7 591; stamps and stamped envelopes sold during the year, 14 066,139; stamps and stamped envelopes issued to Postmasters during the year, 13,863,124; number of mail letters delivered by carriers, 64,340 486; local letters delivered, 14 081,906; newspapers delivered, 16,810,715.

The "Unionist's" Article

That we may not be accused of unfairness in having printed only a part of the late article of the Unionist which we made a subject of comment yesterday, we here give the article entire:

> The OREGONIAN makes the appointment of Hon J. R. Bayley, to the office of Supervisor of Internal Revenue, a pretext for attacking some Federal office holders, in this State, ranking them as enemies to the Republican party, and further, it pretends to be in the dark as to whether he is appointed as a Democrat or a Republican, when that paper well knows that the honorable gentleman was appointed by Commissioner Rollins, upon the recommendation of Senator Corbett, endorsed by Senator Williams.
> Now we would not attempt to explain away, or to apologize for the course of the honorable gentleman in the last Legislature but we are not so blind as not to know that the Great National Republican Party is formed of thinking men, and if occasionally a member of it should honestly differ from us in his views of some fundamental principle, still, if he is willing and anxious to act with the party, and to sustain it at all vital points we certainly are not ready to read him out of the party. Nor are we egotistical enough to set ourselves up, with whip and goad to threaten all, and to demand silent obedience to our expressed principles.
> The article referred to intimated that the Republican party of Oregon is strong enough to discard all who have displeased our late candidate for Congress, but we fail to discover anything in the result of the June election, to satisfy us that we can afford to discard the men who have contributed largely in times past to build up our party in this State.
> In the last paragraph the OREGONIAN seeks to exhibit its scars and wounds received at the last editorial contest. It is certain that its favorite was not elected, but we have no idea that the party at large ever did, or ever will regret its choice.
> It is extremely unfortunate that there are not Federal officers enough to please everybody but as there are not, and, as the great majority have no office, it has become a kind of chronic disability among all classes of the American people to growl somewhat, but as a general thing if the business is properly conducted, they are satisfied.
> Now would it not be well, neighbor, to endeavor to heal any breaches that may have been made and if good Republicans, and good citizens, have been chosen by the appointing power, is it not well to uphold them so long as they do their duty?

A correspondent of the New York Evangelist shows that Barbara Freitchie was no myth, but a person well known in Frederick, Md, and that the incident related by Whittier in his poem was substantially true.

Secretary Seward's speech made at Auburn just before the Presidential election has been handsomely bound in pamphlet form, revised by himself, with the title, "The Issues of the Hour."

Late Political Brevities

The Board of Aldermen of New York city on Monday evening, nominated John T Hoffman, Governor elect, as the Democratic candidate for the Presidency in 1872.

The Memphis Post of the 16th ult. thinks that the Republican candidates are elected in the First and Third Districts of Arkansas. [illegible] was the Republican candidate from the First District.

The Rochester (N. Y.) [illegible] discovered a big mare's nest—nothing less than a scheme [illegible] by some wicked Radicals to get the Republican Presidential electors to give their votes for Colfax for President instead of Grant.

An old Democrat in Madison, Ind, is grieved sorely for having given his son an education. "I have [illegible] grown," says he, "and all [illegible] voted the Democratic ticket but now I spoiled him by giving him an education and he is a Republican and voted against the Democrats."

The New York Democratic papers assert that the Republicans were equally guilty with themselves in committing frauds at the recent election. But we notice that while making these charges they oppose so bitterly all attempts to investigate the frauds. If they believe what they say why don't they do this?

A negro who has been elected Justice of the Peace by the Democracy of Winterset, Iowa, has positively declined to take the office and gravely repudiating any honor from such a source. He was nominated as a joke, but the adoption of the constitutional amendment rendered him eligible. The laugh is now on the other side.

The following are the places where the tearful Seymour spoke, after the October elections and the Republican gains in each place: Rochester 27[illegible], Buffalo 3172, Cleveland, 1 285, Chicago 10[illegible], Indianapolis, 605, Columbus 5[illegible]0, Pittsburg 2 000, Reading 198, Philadelphia, 2 900, at home, 1 000—an average Republican gain of [illegible] for each effort.

The Louisville Courier Journal says: "There can be no such thing as rebellion in a confederation of free States such as the Union was before the war. The war was nothing more nor less than a more violent debate over the question of State Rights than the country had previously engaged in. It was emphatically a political movement." "Violent debate" is good!

The New York Sun says the Union League Club Committee are receiving considerable information in regard to the frauds at the late election—enough to establish, as they say, a ground for contesting the same. They are very loth, however to give any information which may prejudice their investigation beforehand. Two members of the committee have been cited before the Grand Jury to testify on this subject. The Committee promise before many days to reveal some facts and figures which may startle the public, if they do not lead to the conviction of the guilty.

B F Butler on A Belmont—The Democratic Party Sold Out

[From the New York Herald.]

Reporter—Well, General, what do you think of the election?

Gen Butler—It has turned out precisely as it was intended it should by the Democratic leaders from the beginning. It was what the horse jockeys would call a "thrown race," for no political party was ever so completely, so thoroughly sold out by the leaders as the Democracy.

Reporter—How was that?

Gen Butler—I will tell you. The rank and file and the Western Democracy were pledged against the national debt, and against its payment in gold and the high rates of interest. The Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Mr Belmont, was the United States agent of foreign bankers. There is held abroad some six hundred millions of dollars of the United States bonds; payment in gold would make it more than two hundred millions difference in value. The Democratic Convention was managed by Belmont in conjunction with other New York politicians. I have long known their tactics. It has always been of more consequence to them to save the city and State of New York than to save the general Government election. If they must lose either they always prefer the latter. Therefore they determined against Chase, Hendricks and Hancock, fearing that with them the Democracy would win in the nation, and they took up Seymour in order to save the State of New York. They made no fight for Maine the result of which would have been the index of the contest, but sent Pendleton there, whose notions were distasteful at least to the Republicans, from whom they could have made gains. They had already placed a Western man on the ticket (Blair), who of all men is the most obnoxious to Western Democrats, he having been an Abolitionist and a violent Republican general in the Union army, although a man of acknowledged ability. They arranged their platform so as to revive all the issues of the war and thus overshadow entirely all questions of finance and taxation, on which last issues they never got a hearing during the whole campaign. Of course this threw the vote of every lover of his country against those who had been opposed to them during the war. While the contest—the only actual contest of the campaign—was going on in Ohio, Pennsylvania and Indiana, it will be observed Seymour did not take the stump, although in the two last named States less than 6 000 would have changed the result. When these elections were found uncomfortably close the New York World and the National Intelligencer, one owned and the other purchased by the Democracy, entirely demoralized the party by the impossible proposition to change the candidates. It thus being made sure that the Democrats had no chance of carrying the general election, Seymour immediately took the stump to save New York. Mr Belmont issued an address, and the placed for result was obtained. New York was saved to her politicians and the value of the bonds of Belmont's foreign clients was enhanced.

Reporter—In view of these facts General what do you think Grant's course will be towards the Democrats?

Gen Butler—These same men are now patting Gen Grant on the shoulder and endeavoring to win him to their purposes but Gen Grant is bound by every principle of honor that holds men in their action to carry out the reconstruction measures of Congress and to give suffrage to the negro, and fully protect him in its enjoyment. The very fact that Louisiana has gone against him by 55 000 majority, whole parishes not giving him a single vote under the reign of terror which existed there, where thousands of Republican votes were thrown before, will impel him and the Republican party to do this. The New York and Belmont Democrats will get some comfort from the financial policy to which the new administration is pledged. I look to see the action of the new Administration radical upon all points raised and settled by the war, but conservative upon finance.

Reporter—What do you think, General, will be done by Congress in relation to those States where there have been disorders in the late elections?

Gen Butler—I cannot doubt that in every such case prompt and vigorous measures will be taken to correct the evil as well in overruling what has been done as in preventing such occurrences in the future. We are obliged to give every State a republican form of government and that government is neither republican in form nor fact where every elector cannot discuss his political opinions and cast his vote unawed and uncontrolled either by violence, intimidation, threats, or purchase. The contracts everywhere made in the South for the employment of negroes on the condition that they will abstain from voting if their masters so desired, are as much purchases of men as were the purchases from the auction block a few years before. No member of Congress elected in any district where such means were used will ever be admitted to his seat by my consent, or any electoral vote from such districts counted.

The Late Election

OFFICIAL RETURNS FROM SEVERAL STATES

COLUMBUS, OHIO, Nov 20.—The official vote in Ohio at the November election was: Grant 280 222, Seymour, 238 032. Grant's majority is 41 190.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov 20.—Grant's official majority in Indiana is 10 116, a Republican gain over the vote in October of 9 18[illegible].

MADISON, WIS, Nov 20.—The official vote in this State is: Grant, 10[illegible]42, Seymour 74 68[illegible]. Grant's majority, [illegible]. In 1864 Lincoln [illegible]458, McClellan [illegible]. Lincoln's majority, [illegible]574.

ATLANTA, GA, Nov 20.—Complete official returns give the total vote for President, 1[illegible]0 000. Seymour's majority is [illegible].

AUGUSTA, GA, Nov 20.—The Republican contains a communication purporting to detail Ku Klux outrages in Warren and adjoining counties. It says that the negroes were intimidated from voting the Republican ticket and instances of killing and ill treatment by Ku Klux.

Dickens thinks Paul Feval the best French novelist and the French prefer Wilkie Collins and Mrs Oliphant to Charles Dickens and Miss Braddon.

STATE ITEMS

The Corvallis Gazette begins its sixth volume with its next issue.

The Baptist Churches in Lane county have just had quite large accessions to their membership.

The Journal of Eugene goes after the Indian Agent for not keeping the Indians on the Reservations.

Says the Eugene J[illegible]: Mr C. W. Burrage, Chief Engineer of the East Side Railroad is now engaged in making a survey up the East side of the Willamette, crossing the McKenzie at Spores Ferry and striking the Calapooia Mountains at Pass Creek. It is said that the location of this road is still an open question, and it is doubtful whether this place will be touched or whether it will be [illegible].

FROM THE NORTH

VICTORIA, Dec [illegible].—The schooner Thomas H. B[illegible], Captain W. S. Arthur, from San Francisco, laden with groceries and dry goods for Sitka, left Esquimalt harbor for Sitka last Tuesday week. On the evening of the 25th November while running before a strong southeast wind she struck on the extreme edge of the reef which is said to extend out from shore three quarters of a mile at Spellers Point, near Cape Mudge, about thirty miles above Comox. Owing to the gale increasing in velocity, soon after the vessel struck the efforts made by Captain Arthur to get his vessel off at were useless. On the second day she keeled over in three fathoms of water when the sea made a clean sweep over her and broke her to pieces. Captain Lewis arrived next morning with the Otter and brought the wreck together with such portions of the cargo as were floating on the beach for $[illegible]. The liquor was all destroyed as fast as it came on shore to prevent its falling into the hands of the Indians who gathered in crowds around the wreck. Several of the passengers proceeded to Sitka on the Otter. Captain Arthur with his crew and three passengers came down to this city on the schooner Sapphire which arrived yesterday morning. The disaster is said to have occurred through the incompetency of the pilot. [illegible] The vessel and cargo were insured.

The steamer Hecand [illegible] left for San Francisco this morning.

The schooner Alert arrived yesterday from Barclay Sound. She brings no particular news. One tribe of Indians had taken the small pox from some vessel, name unknown, which had touched at that point. They suffered severely, nearly one half of them dying. The supply of oil was not very large this season.

The Four Great States

The following is the official vote of the four largest States for President, at the election on the 3d of November, 1868:

NEW YORK
Grant	41[illegible]
Seymour	42[illegible]
Total	8[illegible] 185
PENNSYLVANIA
Grant	342 280
Seymour	313 382
Total	6[illegible]
OHIO
Grant	280 222
Seymour	238 0[illegible]
Total	519 2[illegible]4
ILLINOIS
Grant	2[illegible]
Seymour	1[illegible]143
Total	44[illegible]
Total of the four States	2 [illegible]
The majorities are as follows:
New York for Seymour	9 [illegible]
Pennsylvania for Grant	[illegible]
Ohio for Grant	41 190
Illinois for Grant	51 15[illegible]

The total vote of the same States in 1864, with the increase since then, was as follows:

	Total	Increase
New York	[illegible]	115 444
Pennsylvania	[illegible]	82 455
Ohio	470,742	48 512
Illinois	348 236	1[illegible],2[illegible]0

At least 15,000 of Seymour's majority in New York is fraudulent and bogus. The real increase in New York should not exceed 100,000.

It is not always by giving money to the poor or assistin[g] the afflicted that a person can only show their charity. A good advice is often better than money; for instance. THE PUBLIC LANDS.—Excluding Alaska, we own in public land nearly a million and a half of acres Including Alaska we own a billion and eight hundred millions. Half a million acres of this have been surveyed. At the rate we sold and gave away land last year 200 years more will see the State like a profligate heir run through its whole possessions. In Florida we still possess 17,500,000 acres. In Ohio only 500 acres unap propriated. In Mississippi nearly 000,000 acres in Alabama the same amount in Louisiana California 100,000,000 acres that State nearly one eighth of herself. More than one half of Kansas belongs to the United States and Mississippi owns one eighth of nearly all the United States

The United States have given away of swamp lands, valuable with reclaimed three times the surface of Holland Belgium Luxembourg, and the Roman marshes The value of this gift may be estimated by the fact that $200,000,000 worth of lands in the Texas bottom can be reclaimed at a cost of $ 000,000 In 1867 Congress had given to the Pacific Railroads 1 000,000 of acres With what was also given to wagon roads this amounts 000,000 of acres are that are included in New England all the Middle States Virginia Maryland and Ohio. Nearly one fourth all the public land disposed of in 1867 was taken for homesteads about 18 000 acres Since the Homestead act was passed 60 farm more than 000,000 acres of land have been taken up and occupied under it and it is probable nearly half a million people are now existing and thriving on the pub lic domain by reason of this philanthropic legis lation The American Homestead is a maximum proprietors of land than there are in all Great Britain In America there are more than 000 000 of freeholders

The Vermont Legislature has passed a bill de livering the bodies of criminals to medical schools one argument for its passage being that the pros pect of dissection would deter criminals from the commission of crime

Boston Press Dinner.

Last Saturday evening the Boston Press took its annual dinner at the Revere House. Mr Edwin B Haskell, of the Herald, presided, Mr. Wm. B Smart, of the Post, acted as Secretary, and Mr. B. F. Guild of the Commercial Bulletin, read a short and spicy poem. At the close of the dinner the President read the following paper giving answers which were said to have been written by persons who had been invited to preside at the next dinner.

Mr. Seymour writes:

"My heart is with you, but your candidate I cannot be."

President Grant writes:

"I don't want it. Got a good thing now."

Chief Justice Chase writes:

"I will stand it I can name the bill of fare at the next supper."

Pendleton writes:

"Gladly, if I can be allowed to issue individual greenbacks to pay the scot."

Colfax writes:

"I have married a wife, and cannot come."

Frank Blair writes:

"Certainly, anything, if I can be deadheaded."

Andy Johnson writes:

"Having occupied every office from Alderman of my native village to President of the United States, why should I want it? Nevertheless, I will take it."

Nasby says:

"I will come if you will send on a flask of whiskey and a railroad pass. I can't get trusted here since the 3d instantaneous."

Brick Pomeroy observes:

"Keep Marble away and I will come. If you invite him he will not live to finish his supper."

Marbles writes:

"I am ever vigorous and undaunted: but I should insist on changing the bill of fare at the last moment if I did not like it."

Governor Bullock says:

"I shall try to come. Say to the total abstinence men of your party that I prefer to have no liquors, and to the liberals that I bespeak a good quantity of generous wine."

General Hancock writes:

"I would gladly be President, but nothing would tempt me to be Secretary."

From J. Q. Adams:

"Excuse me, I feel just now as though I had been thrust into life too early. Perhaps I will by and by."

Governor Claflin writes.

"I know I shouldn't make much of a President; but if a poor and pious President will do I am your man."

From Horace Greeley:

"The man who says that I would not come is a liar and a slave! Men and baethren, I am coming."

Ben Butler writes:

"I have just purloined a letter, from you sent to another man through the Post Office I am now engaged in collecting evidence against your private character because you did not send me an invitation."

Boston Gossip.

NASBY IN BOSTON.

[Cor. Chicago Tribune.]

The novel incident of the week here has been the appearance as a lecturer, for the first time on a Boston platform, of Petroleum V Nasby, and the success he has achieved, in brilliant contrast to the woeful failure of his last predecessor in the news field, Miss Olive Logan, has been very [illegible]ked. Mr. Locke was very nervous about the ordeal of an appearance before that exaggerated bugbear, a Boston audience; and if he could have done so he would have broken off his engagement, like one he made here some time ago, from [illegible] dread of an inability to create a sympathy with his broad fun, in the audience educated by familiarity with the severe simplicity of Phillips and the subtleties of Emerson. But the hearty rounds of applause which greeted the author of the Nasby letters as an old acquaintance, must have dispelled much of his apprehension; and even those who had formed a dislike to the man from the monotony of his newspaper satire, were [illegible] to thorough enjoyment of the richer fun of his platform utterance. He has engagements to [illegible] nightly for a month in New England, and will be likely to find his Boston success a [illegible] in favor throughout this section.

MRS. SCOTT SIDDONS.

A hit quite as palpable as Mr. Nasby's, and in a department of art much more difficult than his, has been made here by Mrs. Scott Siddons as a [illegible], although her appointments thus far have fallen in the midst of one of our most pertinacious November storms. Never, in the experience of your correspondent, has a Boston audience so warmed to a new comer as in the case of this lady. Something of the enthusiasm she has excited must be attributed to her youth, her very remarkable beauty—which is delicate and refined in character—and to her grace of manner, which, while entirely easy, is singularly free from the self consciousness and assertions so common on the platform. In her reading itself, your correspondent was unable to detect the genius which the [illegible] of listeners seemed to find there; but he begs to withhold his final expression of opinion until the lady shall have appeared on the stage, where he feels more competent to estimate the value of her talents. For so marked was the impression she evidently made upon the audience [illegible] at her first appearance that the manager of one of our theaters (the Museum) at once made the proposition for a single performance by Mrs. Siddons on the stage in the character of Rosalind, and the arrangements are made for Saturday night, with a pomp of announcement and [illegible] of price suited to the entree of the greatest histrionic genius of our times.

GEN. GRANT AND CONGRESS.—The figures show Gen. Grant everywhere much more popular than the Republican party. His name was a tower of strength, and prevented the Democratic party from securing a majority in the next Congress. The results in the early Fall elections in the States where the Congressional issue was distinctly met, exhibit heavy losses in Republican members and on the popular vote. Compare the results in the September and October elections with the results in November, and we have the evidence of the great popularity of Gen. Grant over the Republican party. The loss of thirty-five members of Congress to the Republican party is a public blessing to the country, and a great advantage to the Republican party. We trust the party in Congress will be admonished by the result of the early Fall election. Nothing, we repeat, but the desire of the people to keep Congress in harmony with Gen. Grant, whose election was regarded as a foregone conclusion, saved the Republican party in Congress from defeat. It is a matter, therefore, of congratulation that the National Legislature will be in harmony with the Executive, and there will be neither vetoes nor impeachment to disturb the peace of the community. The party that has elected Gen. Grant will have a good working majority in Congress, and that is all that it needs. It is much better for the country that the two great parties should be more evenly balanced in the popular branch of the Government than during the past four years, and no statesman in the Republican ranks will regret the results of the recent Congressional election.

CONDESCENSION.—A ragged militia officer, and still more bandy-legged negro, met at the bar of a public place.

"Cuff, you're a good honest fellow, and I like to compliment a man what's lived an honest life, if he is black; you shall take a glass of drink with me, Cuff."

"Well, Capting, I's berry dry, so I won't be ugly 'bout it; some niggers is too proud to drink with militia officer, but when he's sober he's jis as good as nigger. Specially if de nigger's dry."

A broker, when escorting home a fair damsel, asked her what sort of money she liked best. Of course the blushing beauty suggested matrimony.

"What interest does it bring?" inquired the note shaver.

"If properly invested," faltered the fair charmer, "it will double its original stock every three years."

A boy in Maine had great trouble in breaking up the nest of a setting hen. He flung her off the nest various times, doused her with water, but all to no purpose. Becoming enraged, he set fire to the barn. That fetched her.

Girardin counsels the Spaniards not to beg for a King, but to establish a republic in fact, though not in name, if the word republic frightens the nation.

Bishop Beckwith, of Georgia, is young and handsome, and is very popular with his flock.

Mr Zachariah Wilson, Portland, Oregon, writes:

"It requires an article of real merit and intrinsic value to sustain itself during the stormy ordeal of public experiments. Murray's Improved Magic Oil has stood the test of time and has not been found wanting. The astonishing efficacy that I experienced—its curing me of Chronic Rheumatism and Lumbago, of long standing, entitles Dr. Murray's Premium Lung and Liver Balsam and Improved Magic Oil to a high rank, as the best remedies for Rheumatism, Lumbago, Earache, Distressing Pains, etc."

John English of Howell Prairie, Marion county, Oregon writes:

"I was taken with a severe attack of Rheumatism in my knee joints and extremities accompanied with a severe cough for two months so that I had to use crutches, meanwhile trying all remedies in common use. Your Magic Oil and Balsam gave me instant relief, and I was able to walk in four days without crutches. I have not felt any rheumatism since. I have seen your family medicines used with excellent success. I have no hesitancy in saying it is the best preparation for family use ever tried for these complaints. I am now on my way to South America after residing in Oregon twenty years. I must now have two dozens Balsam and two dozens of your Magic Oil, dollar bottles, as I am sure they are the best remedies in Oregon, and I would not be without them in my house, and when this package of medicine is exhausted I will send to your office in Portland for a fresh supply. J. ENGLISH."

POWDER AND SHOT, For sale by H. W. CORBETT & CO.

San Francisco.

CHANGE OF NAME!

MERCADO & CO., SUCCESSORS TO Mercado & Seully, have been obliged for their own protection and the safety of the public, to change the name of their celebrated Bitters to

MERCADO'S

Native California Wine

BITTERS

We subjoin the following affidavit in an injunction suit formerly pending between Mercado & Seully, plaintiffs, and J. A. Simon, defendant.

P. Sainsevain, being duly sworn, says, "That the article known as Sainsevain's Cal. Native Wine Bitters was manufactured by Mercado & Seully, about the month of March, 1861, without the said Sainsevain Brothers having any concern in the manufacture thereof. The deponent has always known and considered said Mercado & Seully as the Sole Proprietors of the Sainsevain California Wine Bitters."

Notwithstanding the above affidavit the said P. Sainsevain is putting up a compound under the name of Sainsevain's California Wine Bitters, representing it to be the same as our celebrated Bitters, which we have been manufacturing and selling in immense quantities since 1861, and also affixing a strictly similar label to that used on our genuine Wine Bitters. BENOIT DESAIVED

Send for

NATIVE CALIFORNIA WINE BITTERS,

And you will obtain the same popular beverage so favorably known since 1861. Beware of Counterfeits! Purchasers of our Wine Bitters are requested to observe the familiar old yellow label, and see that the words, "MERCADO & SEULLY, SAN FRANCISCO," are engraved on the Government stamp posted over the cork of each bottle. This is the only effectual security against the counterfeit imitations.

PROSPECTUS

OF THE

Weekly Oregonian.

FOR 1869.

Nineteenth Volume!

Only $3.00 a Year.

By common consent, the OREGONIAN ranks first among the papers published in the Northwest. It is the oldest paper in the State, and its circulation and influence are greater than that of any other two papers combined. As a journal of enterprise in gathering the latest intelligence, and in giving in each issue a larger amount and greater variety of reading matter it has no competitor. It is thoroughly identified with this city and State and neighboring Territories, where the number of its readers and its influence are constantly increasing.

An unflinching advocate of sound Union principles, it at the same time pays special attention not only to MATTERS OF GENERAL INTEREST, but to everything of moment to the great

Agricultural, Manufacturing,

AND MINING INTERESTS,

And to the development of the resources and settlement of the Northwest.

Its columns contain a carefully prepared digest of

Its Literary and General Selections are from the best sources.

EXTENDED AND RELIABLE

Commercial Reports

are furnished every week, giving the Financial, Dry Goods, Hardware, and General Market Reports of Portland, and the latest reports by Telegraph of the San Francisco and New York markets. These reports are acknowledged to be the most accurate published in the State.

In every department it will be, as it has been, the foremost in the State in the field of journalism. Being firmly established, it will go forward with confidence, making new plans for improvement and usefulness, and hopes to gain increased circulation and support.

All papers are discontinued at the end of the time for which they have been paid, the date of which is always printed with the name each week.
